

No Man's Land

April 2023

Since the winter 'tidy up' and hedge trimming we have seen snowdrops and daffodils in bloom which were planted some time ago and welcome violets.

The area will be left to grow through Spring and Summer maintaining a path for walking through the centre. We will continue to add wild flower plants – some cow/oxlips and also ox eye daisies to go in. The 'grassless' area near the end of St Mary's Close is to be seeded and, Nature being as she is, there will probably be a need to remove pernicious weeds on occasion..

Hopefully the additional yellow rattle seeds scattered in the autumn will become thriving plants to discourage the grass and encourage more wild flowers.
